Fair Access to Care Services

Your questions answered
1 WHAT DOES FAIR ACCESS TO CARE SERVICES MEAN?

Fair Access to Care Services (FACS for short) is a system for deciding how much support people with social care needs can expect, to help them cope and keep them fit and well. It applies to all the local authorities in England. Its aim is to help social care workers make fair and consistent decisions about the level of support needed, and whether your local council should pay for this.

2 WHAT IS AN ASSESSMENT?

This is when a social care worker collects information from you and, if appropriate, your family or carers. The worker may ask your permission to contact other people, such as your doctor, who support you. The aim is to get a full picture of the things you can manage and the support you get from others, before deciding what you may need from adult social care services. In the assessment you, with the worker, will decide the outcomes you want to achieve, how you want to achieve them, and what kinds of support best fit your way of life.

3 WHAT IS SELF DIRECTED ASSESSMENT?

If you wish, you can assess your own strengths and support needs as part of the overall assessment of your social care needs.

4 WHO HAS A RIGHT TO AN ASSESSMENT?

Assessment is available to anyone who approaches adult social care services or is referred to them, regardless of their age (over 18) circumstances or social care need. This right includes carers, and young people who are in the process of transferring from children’s services to adult services. Your social care needs must always be assessed before there is any discussion about your finances. If you do not agree with your assessment you have the right to complain using local complaints procedures.

5 WHAT IS ELIGIBILITY?

Eligible needs are needs for which you may be entitled to state-funded social care and support. There are four bands of eligibility: critical, substantial, moderate and low. They are defined in detail in the table at the end of this leaflet. A decision will be made by adult social care services, based on the information you and others provide, about which of these bands is the best fit with your level of needs. Each council must decide for which bands it is able to provide services, and publish this information. Brent Council have decided that it will meet the eligible social care needs of people who meet the Critical and Substantial Criteria.

Outcomes

These are results people want to achieve. They are identified in your assessment and will be reviewed if you need future support. The ones that are specifically important to FACS assessments are:

- your ability to have control and choice over your life;
- your health and wellbeing;
- your dignity and respect;
- your quality of life;
- tackling discrimination or harassment;
- how you are able to contribute to family and community life;
- your economic wellbeing;
- protection from the risk of harm, abuse and neglect.

No outcome is more important than any other when assessing your social care needs, except when there is a risk to your safety and independence.
Prevention and early intervention
This involves giving information and advice, and identifying community and other support at an early stage, so that difficulties don’t become overwhelming. The aim is to prevent or lessen the things that have a negative impact on your quality of life or that of your family or carers.

Brent Council is able to give you information and advice that aims to support your independence and wellbeing.

People who are unable to make decisions for themselves
People who are unable to make decisions for themselves about their assessed eligible needs and how these may be met will be supported, along with their families and friends, to make decisions that are in their best interest. The Mental Capacity Act 2005 places on local authorities a duty to ensure mental capacity assessments and best interest decisions are used to support people who need this support.

Direct Payments and personal budgets
Direct Payments involve giving an agreed amount of money to someone who is eligible for publicly funded social care, so that the individual can use it to arrange support that meets their needs in ways that best fit their circumstances. For people who prefer not to receive cash and manage their own support, a Personal budget gives them scope to say how they would like the money used to design the support service that suits them best. The arrangements are then made on their behalf by the local council, a relative or someone else acting on their behalf.

Personalisation
This policy puts people at the centre of the assessment process. It focuses on the outcomes people want to achieve and the solutions that best fit their lives. Personalisation recognises that support from family, friends and adult social care services can be enhanced by support from neighbourhoods and communities. It requires staff and services to be as flexible as possible in responding to people’s individual circumstances. It also calls for very effective coordination and communication between people requiring support, their carers and all the services involved.

Personalisation also aims to ensure that people are not unfairly discriminated against during the assessment process, nor in relation to the way they want their support needs met if they are eligible for funding.

SUPPORT FOR CARERS

For more information contact Brent Carers Centre on 020 8795 6240.

- People who provide, or intend to provide, a substantive informal caring role for those people being assessed will also be entitled to a separate assessment of their needs as a carer.
- The purpose of this assessment is to see if you are happy to continue in your caring role and, if so, what support you may need from the local authority to continue in this role.
- As a Carer you are entitled to a Carers Assessment if the person you are caring for is entitled to community care services from Brent Council.

If you feel you might require help from adult social care services, or you just want information and advice about how to remain independent and well in your own home, call Brent Council on 020 8937 4300.
